Conditional matrimonial consent, An historical synopsis and commentary (Catholic University of America. Canon law studies)

by Bartholomew Thomas Timlin

The thesis provides a detailed historical synopsis and commentary on conditional matrimonial consent, including an analysis of the legal and theological factors that influence the church's understanding and enforcement of this principle. It covers the historical development of the concept, its application in various legal contexts, and its implications for marriage and family law.

The thesis is a valuable resource for scholars and practitioners interested in the history and theology of conditional matrimonial consent in canon law.
